

April Norhanian Sample Interview Questions
College Is For Suckers -The First College Guide You Should Read

1. So, why is college for suckers?
2. You assert in your book that the price of a college education is now too expensive. Could you provide examples of where you believe the costs are unreasonable?
3. Despite some of the questionable expenses, is it not true that a college education continues to be a good investment?
4. Don't people with a college degree make more money?
5. So a person has just as much a chance of a successful career with no higher education?
6. You question the value of a liberal arts degree which exposes students to classes or subjects that they would not normally take. Is this not a worthwhile dimension of college since it broadens an individual's understanding of the world?
7. Many students attend college to gain a sense of independence, participate in sports, and join various clubs. Would you not agree that these experiences are valuable?
8. You discuss many people's high expectations of economic and social mobility through college. Why do you feel this concept has become somewhat of an illusion?
9. As far as the quality of a college education goes, you point out that many college graduates lack some very basic skills. Could you elaborate?
10. You also reported on a number of college courses that are questionable in terms of academic relevance as well as grade inflation. Could you provide some examples?
11. What alternatives do students have if they cannot afford college or simply do not want to attend a four-year college but would still like to further their education and be marketable to employers?
12. As you state in your book, graduate degrees are becoming the norm among competitive job seekers. Do MBA graduates have a better chance in the job market?
13. What's so bad about going to college and broadening your horizons, and figuring out what you might want to do later?